MORRIS CS9 ARMOURD CAR TROOP

In the spring of 1940, the quiet fields of France awoke to thunder. Across the Ardennes rolled the steel tide of the Wehrmacht—swift, relentless, unstoppable. In a campaign of daring speed, columns of tanks and waves of aircraft were the spearhead of the Blitzkrieg, or Lightning War, a new style of warfare that would change the world forever.

Includes German Force, Formations and Units for:
 Light Tank Company,
 Medium Tank Company,
 Panzer 38(t) Tank Company,
 StuG Assault Gun Battery,
 Motorised Rifle Company,
 Armoured Rifle Company,
 Infantry Company, and
 Armoured Car Company.

Amid chaos and ruin, France stood defiant. In the dust of collapsing fronts, the French army fought for survival. Outgunned and outflanked their Char B1s, Somua S35s, and Hochkiss tanks spearheaded the defense, holding their ground against overwhelming odds, hoping that each desperate stand would halt the German tide.

Includes French Force, Formations and Units for:
 Somua S35 Combat Squadron,
 Char B1 Tank Company,
 Chasseurs Company,
 Motor Fusiliers Squadron,
 Rifle Company, and
 Panhard AMD Reconnaissance Squadron.

During this darkest hour, British Expeditionary Force fought with grim determination. Trapped in pockets, surrounded by enemy armor and relentless fire they refused to yield. Facing relentless waves of mechanized assault, they fought with discipline, courage, and unwavering resolve. Each counter-attack and heroic last stand was a victory for those soldiers waiting on the beaches of Dunkirk.

Includes British Force, Formations and Units for:
 A13 Armoured Squadron,
 Matilda I Tank Company,
 Matilda II Tank Company,
 Rifle Company, and
 Division Cavalry Squadron.
